

2013 U.S. Senate Map* (educated forecast based on current trends if the presidential election was held today, assuming Mitt Romney is the Republican nominee)

*This is a January 2012 prediction made by author Jon Decker based on views of recent government strategy trends and historical analysis.

Author Jon Decker believes two Senate races (Massachusetts and Virginia) are “toss-ups.” They are the most competitive Senate races in the United States, as either party has a good chance of winning.

